Section 7 is as follows: In any case arising under the act where the parent guardian or other person having the control of any child between the said ages of 8 and 14 years, is unable to provide such child for said term with the text books required to be furnished to children in such school by said person, and shall so state in writing to the said trustee, the said trustee shall provide said text books for said 14 weeks, at the public school for the use of such child, and the expense of the same shall be paid by the treasurer of said city or supervisor of said town, on the certificate of said trustee, specifying the items furnished for the use of such child.

STATE NEWS.

The Biddeford City Government law is still unsettled.

River driving commenced in Dennysville May fifth. About 6,000,000 feet will be driven, nearly 100,000 less than last year.

Henry Gallison of Falmouth, seventy three years old, died in bed at a hotel in Portland, Friday night, of heart disease.

The city council of Augusta have appropriated $70,000 for the expenses of the city for the current year.

The attempt to raft sawed lumber from Waterville, over the Lower Falls, down the Kennebec, is counted a success.

William Bush has just commenced work on a three-masted schooner of about 700 tons in his yard at Wiscasset.

Five divorces were granted at the present term of the Supreme Judicial Court at Wiscasset.

The News says Waldoboro river, wharves and shipyards have not presented so busy an appearance since 1861, as they do now.

Mrs F T Howard, residing on Spring St., Auburn was stricken with apoplexy on Thursday, and died in a few hours.

The new brickyard for the manufacture of brick for the new cotton factory in Waterville, is nearly ready to commence operations.

A woman at Augusta, last Friday saved the life of a drunken man, who had fallen overboard from a boat, by seizing him by his clothing and drawing him back into the boat.

Joseph Clark & Son, of Waldoboro, have stretched the keel of a bottomless of 600 tons, which they intend to complete immediately, and then set up a ship to be launched before navigation closes on the river.

The proprietors of that live local paper the Waterville Mail, have greatly improved the appearance of their sheet by contracting the width of their columns, and adding one column to each page.

A Bath man in jail at Portland on a charge of kidnapping a colored girl. His white wife, to whom he is not married, also in the same time and the county, is there trying to collect her husband's wages.

In a dry time, says the Lewiston Journal, we have never seen so much of a freshet in the Androscoggin as now. The river has been rising for several days and the falls are covered with water, save the log rock that stands guard on the east of West Pitch

Friday afternoon, John Curtis, Frank Richards, Michael O'Brien, Francis Hogue and ... McNulty escaped from Alna Jail. McNulty was soon recaptured, and the others were traced to Biddeford. Their escape was effected by the failure of the jail door to fasten itself after being pushed to by a son of Sheriff Warren, who, in company with a County Commissioner and a blacksmith, ordered the jail to have some work done.

In the Supreme Judicial Court at Auburn, Alexander Dunn has recovered a verdict of $1475.25 against Calvin Record, Esq., for money collected of the G. T. R. R. Co., by defendant for injuries received by plaintiff while riding in the cars, July 22, 1870. The original case was tried in Portland, April 1869, and Dunn recovered a verdict against the company of $1,000. Record alleges that Dunn assigned him the claim for $500, which he paid to him, and subsequently paid him about $200 more.

Senators Edmunds and Hoyard appeared before the District of Columbia Committee on Friday and explained how they had compromised with the Board of Public Works by abandoning claims for damage when no assessments had been made. They had both submitted to great loss cheerfully because, as Senators, they did not choose to have any pecuniary relations to the local committee. The settlement made was in every way against their own interests, and the committee regarded it as highly honorable to both. Senator Edmunds characterized the work of the board in his neighborhood as no mere wage upon private rights and a waste of public funds.

CONNECTICUT STATISTICS.—The Rev. E. B. Hoadly, the State Librarian of Connecticut, on the registration of births, marriages, and deaths, and also in relation to coal sources, for the year 1873, shows a total population of 1,626,687 persons, a gain of ... over the previous year and 12½ per cent more than were returned in 1860. The marriages in 1873 were 4,841, which is 182 less than in 1872. Of the marriages where both parties were of American birth, there were 2,768; where both were foreigners, 1,833, in which the party was a native and the other a foreigner, 975. The deaths number ... of 148 less than in 1872.

Of divorces 407 were granted—69 from Hartford county, 107 from New Haven county, 67 from New London, 71 from Fairfield, etc. The women are the petitioners in the majority cases, and of the 357 applications, 274 were petitioned for by the wife and 183 by the husband.

ENCOURAGING NEWS TO POOR.—The following is from the diary of John Quincy Adams, and was written when he was forty years old and a member of the United States Senate

"I spoke about an hour; but the subject had been exhausted by Mr Giles, and I could only present some of his ideas in new lights. I should have done better to remain silent. My defects of elocution are intolerable, and amidst so many better speakers, when the debates are to be reported, I never speak without mortification. The process of hammering in my mind is too slow for any interrupted articulation. My thoughts arise at first confused, and require time to shape into a succession of sentences. Hence the transition from thought to thought is awkward and inelegant, and expression often fails me to such a degree as to overpower me. I shall suffer not to perpetual silence, from more than fear, were it not that sometimes in the midst of debate, when my feelings are wound up to a high tension, the current flows itself with unpremeditated rapidity, and I have passed off which would not shame a good speaker; this is the only thing that makes me tolerable to myself."

CRUSADERS ARRESTED.—On Saturday afternoon forty-three temperance women were arrested while praying in front of a saloon on Bayard Street, Cincinnati, near the scene of the disturbance of Friday. They were warned to desist by the officers, but they did not. Among the ladies arrested were the wives of Dr C H Taylor, Rev C. H Payne, Rev Dr Fort, Rev Dr W. J Fee, Rev D. K Leavett and Rev Mr McHugh. They refused to accept bail offered by friends. Lot were finally released on parole, to appear before the Police Court Monday morning. A prayer meeting was organized at the station house, but it was stopped by the officers. After being released the ladies returned to the church and held a meeting. A proposition was made to start a week's temperance league in every ward in the city and raise a large guarantee fund for purposes of the temperance movement. For the trial on Monday it was resolved to employ the ablest counsel. The police say that they had information that a band of German women was organized to meet them and drive them from the street.

The new State Constitution of Pennsylvania has proved so effectual in preventing jobs that two thirds of the members of the present Assembly will not think it worth while to seek re-election.

The U. S. Steamer Brooklyn arrived at St. Thomas the 10th ult., and subsequently sailed for Guadeloupe.

The suffrage cause was stolen bodily from Margaret Fuller's "Woman in the Nineteenth Century."

A MOTION TO ADJOURN

A despatch from Washington states that the Republican Senators, at a caucus held Monday evening, decided that the Senate should pass a concurrent resolution providing for the adjournment of Congress on the 22d of June. We think such a motion will be promptly seconded by the people, who have become pretty thoroughly convinced that sound financial legislation is hardly possible with the present temper of Congress, and that the business interests must continue to suffer while this important subject is tossed to and fro between the two Houses. Over five months have already elapsed since Congress assembled with the financial question most prominently in view, and the net results attained have been a vast amount of oratory, the airing of innumerable theories, and the passage of a bill so obnoxious in its features that the President was compelled to veto it. The tendency of the legislative branch toward inflation has been so manifest that the public generally have long since ceased to entertain much hope of any benefit to the national finances from that quarter, and the money market is well continues to indicate the prevailing apprehension, until the possibility of tampering with the volume of currency is removed by the adjournment of Congress.

There are many things which Congress ought to do before closing the session, but since the position of the majority upon financial matters compels its continuance to act as a daily menace to the business affairs of the country we can perhaps better afford the postponement of needful legislation on various other real questions than to suffer the consequences of prolonging the present financial uncertainty. Really the most important demand which presses upon Congress when it assembled after the panic was for the institution of such measures to facilitate a return to the specie standard, but instead of this the majority have stubbornly insisted upon running counter to it, and the greater part of the session has been employed in devising projects for increasing the volume of promises to pay, without making any provision for their payment. Under these circumstances the malefactions caused by the fear of what Congress may do with the finances so greatly overbalance the probable benefits of other legislation that we think an adjournment will bring a general feeling of relief.

If there were any prospect of an agreement in Congress upon such a financial measure as would secure the approval of the Executive it would be to the advantage to the country we should be in no special hurry for adjournment. But the members are old hands at postponing the financial question until the last moment, and

PROBABLE WITHDRAWAL OF THE CUNARD STEAMERS.

BOSTON, May 19. The high cost of rail-road freight on grain and other products from the West, has compelled the Cunard Company to seriously contemplate withdrawing all of their steamers from the Liverpool and Boston route and transferring them to New York. The proposition causes much feeling in business circles and efforts are being made to induce railroad managers to lower their rates.

THE WINTERMUTE TRIAL.

YANKTON, May 19. In the Wintermute case yesterday, six witnesses for the prosecution were examined. Among these were Dr. Burleigh, who was with McCook nearly all the time after the shooting until his death, and Mr. Wooley, who testified that he was in the court room when the shooting occurred. Mr. Wintermute came in and took a seat about eight feet from the witness. He was looking frequently towards the door and went out twice returning soon after evidently watching the door. In about half an hour witness saw Wintermute get up, draw a revolver from his pocket and fire at McCook, who was just outside the door. McCook rushed at him with both hands raised and pen with the palms forward. Wintermute fired again and witness heard two shots afterwards and another witness testified that he heard Wintermute say to another man, "Tell McCook I am going to shoot him on sight."

To expedite business, sub-committees were appointed some time since by the State Central Committee to draft important bills. Among them a license law, a new judicial and senatorial bill and a bill to redistrict the wards of Manchester. Some prominent Democrats advocate the adoption of the provisions of the United States with reference to the license question. The State officers to be elected by the Legislature is a prominent topic. Hon. Wm. Butterfield of Concord, late editor of the Patriot, will probably be Secretary of State. Hon. Wm. Burrows of Plymouth, and Hon. Albert R. Hatch of Portsmouth, are the leading candidates for the Speakership of the House, and Samuel B. Jackson of Littleton, and Charles Smith of New Market, for the Clerkship.

THE ARKANSAS IMBROGLIO.

AFFAIRS AT LITTLE ROCK.

NEW YORK, May 19. Little Rock specials contain the following. About 325 men left yesterday and a company of Baxter's men also left. The State House is in a shockingly dirty condition after its use by the Brooks men. A guard of regulars has been stationed there.

Brooks continues defiant under receipt of despatches from Dorsey or Clayton at Washington to the effect that Brooks will be sustained by Congress.

It is said that Baxter stated yesterday that under the laws of the State, Brooks and his followers had been guilty of treason which was punishable with death and that Brooks would be wise to leave the State. In case he remains the consequences to him would be serious.

Gov. Baxter telegraphed to parties in Washington yesterday, that all sorts of fraud and corruption will be proved against Dorsey and Clayton and the Legislature will resolve that they should both resign.

At Pine Bluff, Brook's negro leader named Murphy is inciting the negroes to incendiarism. It was arranged last night that Baxter's men take possession of the State House to-day. Gov. Baxter, under an escort, went to his own house last night for the first time since the rebellion broke out. Troops will go to Pine Bluff to-day to kill the negro Murphy.

WASHINGTON.

THE SANBORN CONTRACTS—A LIND OF THE LAW SHOWN UP.

WASHINGTON, May 19. The Committee of Ways and Means had before it this morning M. Dickerman, a Boston lawyer, who furnished the Committee with an interesting history of F. A. Prescott, Sanborn's lawyer, and detailed the circumstances by which Prescott fleeced a New Bedford boot and shoe dealer out of $900 on pretence of settling for him a case of insufficient income tax. He gave a succinct history of Prescott's career from the time he was a clerk in the Internal Revenue Bureau where he divulged correspondence from the Boston District Attorney's office until the time when this same District Attorney, Mr. Hallyard, made a motion for Prescott's admission to the bar in ignorance of his antecedents. As to Sanborn he scouted the idea that he was a mysterious man. He would as soon think of mentioning Daniel Pratt in that character. He believes that Sanborn was simply put forward as a man through whom knowledge and information of revenue frauds might be utilized by others.

WORKINGMEN'S MASS MEETING.

The Workingmen's Mass Meeting here last night was largely attended. [illegible] were adopted demanding the adoption of the eight hour system and the removal of architect Mullet; deprecating the introduction of Coolies as threatening the existence of enlightened workingmen; favoring a people's freight railroad opening communications by the government.

PARIS, May 19. Goulard has not given up the hope of forming a Ministry, but is continuing negotiations to-day. During the day McMahon gave audience to Goulard, Buffet and Duke De Caser.

GOULARD'S RELIANCE.

The Moderate Right object to an impersonal septennate because it would be equivalent to a recognition of the Republic. The Extreme Right are determined to oppose Goulard or any other chief of the Ministry whose platform embraces the adoption of constitutional bills. Goulard finding no sure support in the Left Centre or Right, is therefore compelled to rely mainly upon the minority in the Assembly. It is expected that the Ministry will be compelled to unite with Goulard, De Cazes, Magne and Bodet as the head of the principal departments.

—The Bangor Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will be represented in the coming International Congress under the direction of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in London, next month, by Geo. F. Godfrey, Esq., and wife of this city.

—Mr. Joseph Cyr of Plantation L while at work driving on Hammond brook, was seriously injured one day last week by being thrown down and a large log rolling upon his legs and up as far as his breast. One of his legs was fractured and it is feared that he is injured internally.

—A despatch from Rockland states that James Martin and wife of that place had a quarrel, in the course of which Mrs. Martin threw a pair of shears at her husband's head, which he succeeded in dodging. The shears struck one of their children, four years of age in the knee, inflicting an ugly wound, from the effects of which the child died on Monday.

THE DRIVES. Our correspondent "Nopen" writes that the rear logs of Palmer & Johnson's drives are back some three miles from the mouth of the Mattawamkeag. Stevens' drive, containing Frost's, Perty's and other logs was got into the Mattawamkeag from the Molunkus and tributary streams on Monday, and will be taken along with Palmer & Johnson's. Some six million feet of logs were let into Palmer & Johnson's drive last week, from the Jellison boom.

FIRES IN ORLAND. On Friday last the house, shed and barn in Orland owned by Thomas Hewey, Esq., were destroyed by fire together with all their contents—furniture, household goods, farming implements, several calves, a hog, a large flock of hens etc. The loss will amount to nearly $5,000, on which there was no insurance.

Capt. John Perry's house and outbuildings in the same town were burned on the 6th inst., with most of their contents, furniture, etc. The loss was about the same as on Mr. Hewey's property, but Capt. Perry was so fortunate as to have an insurance of $1,000.

THE MATTAWAMKEAG BRIDGE. Work on the new railway bridge now building at Mattawamkeag to replace the one destroyed by fire a short time since, has been pushed forward with great rapidity under the direction of Superintendent Angell, who has been giving his personal attention to the work. In addition to the large crew of carpenters and workmen employed by the E. & N. A. company, one section-man from each section of the road has been called to help, and the force thus augmented has made quick work of the job. The northern and southern spans of the bridge were completed and the rails laid last night. The middle span was nearly finished at that time, and it was some expected that trains could cross the bridge this afternoon. At any rate they can cross by Friday. The jam of logs in the Mattawamkeag will be left to protect the middle and northern spans, and the temporary piers sunk under to support the others. The river is kept clear of logs under the permanent southern span.

A BATCH OF RUNAWAYS. Yesterday was a good day for runaway horses. One distinguished himself by overturning a carriage on Court st. early in the morning, but did little damage. Another, owned by W. D. McLaughlin, Esq., kicked one leg over the cross-bar of the carriage to which he was attached, and came down Morse's hill to Harlow st. on three legs, falling when he struck the level and breaking a shaft. Another, owned by Abram Woodard, Esq., ran away with an empty buggy on Union st., and after running through Columbia and Middle sts. dashed down Main st. on the sidewalk, narrowly missing several pedestrians, and clearing himself from the vehicle by striking a stone post in front of Buzzell & Shaw's. A more dilapidated carriage was never seen, hardly a stick in it escaping unbroken. In the evening a horse attached to a market wagon took fright at the drum of the Jameson Guards and dashed across Kenduskeag bridge, scattering groceries and other articles in wild confusion. We did not learn to whom this animal belonged, as the owner ran after nearly as fast as the fleeting horse. Still another frightened horse attempted to run into Pote's store later in the evening, but did no damage except to paint and varnish.

MAINE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

ANNUAL SESSION—FIRST DAY.

Our city is honored for the first time by the presence of the Maine State Sunday School Convention, which represents some three hundred schools and ten thousand pupils among different denominations in Maine. The unpropitious weather yesterday kept many away from the early sessions, but there was no abatement of interest in the exercises.

FORENOON SESSION.

The Convention assembled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at the Pine-st. M. E. church. After an hour of prayer conducted by Rev. C. B. Peckham, Prof. Sherwin led in brief song service, presiding at the organ with taste and ability. The address of welcome was offered by Prof. Barbour. He welcomed the delegates cordially for their own sakes and for the sake of Him whom they served. This city has a record for its hospitable character and to these noble workers a special greeting is given. Not only will the sessions of the Convention be productive of immediate good, for the hour, but we fain believe that a permanent benefit will be derived by the blessing of God. Alfred the Great said "the good things of this life are good through the goodness of the good man that worketh them, and he is good through God."

Rev. A. J. Rogers of Biddeford responded and hoped that Bangor might reap as rich a fruitage from the sessions as was enjoyed at the last session in his city. He briefly rehearsed some of these benefits accruing to the churches and schools in Biddeford, emphasizing the impulse given by Prof. Sherwin in sacred song.

David Cargill, Esq., the temporary chairman, nominated Messrs. G. M. Palmer, L. E. Grant, J. Dinsmore, G. R. Palmer and C. B. Peckham, Nominating Committee.

The State Secretary, Rev. O. M. Cousens, reported visits in the various counties. His receipts were $[illegible] and expenditures $[illegible]. He has attended meetings, collected and collated statistics and he believes that some interest has been elicited by his varied work throughout the State.

Mr. Alden Baker, Treasurer, reported $584 05 receipts and $584 89 disbursements.

The following officers were then elected:—President, Hon. J. S. Wheelwright; Secretaries, David Cargill, Esq., and Rev. C. B. Besse; Committee on Finance, Messrs. C. M. Bailey, E. Gove and J. S. Wheelwright.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Half-hour prayer meeting at 2 P. M., led by Rev. J. Dinsmore.

The first paper was read by Rev. E. P. Thwing on "What and How to Teach." Prof. T. made the following points:—

1. The work of preacher and teacher are one, essentially. The truth is the same, the object and motives the same, therefore

2. The rule for both is the same, "Preach the word," not about the gospel, or to ideas remotely connected with it, but the love and law of God, the truth itself. Many are content with the mere drapery of the truth, the biographical and geographical adjuncts of the lesson, and leave out any personal application looking toward the salvation of the soul.

3. Teach experimentally. Let the teacher extract the pith and marrow of the lesson studied on the knees, assimilate the same into his soul and then, clothed with its power, he will truly influence others.

4. Respect your own individuality, your aptitudes. Let each work in his own way, the imaginative dealing in parables, the philosophical punctuating his speech with epigrams, the man or woman humorous in business or domestic cares making his employments suggestive of higher truths and relations.

5. Respect the law of fitness. The time, circumstances, condition and education of the pupils must guide.

6. Lastly, reproduce the spirit and methods of the Great Teacher. In his prayerfulness, zeal, tenderness and assiduity He must be our constant model.

Rev. O. M. Cousens then offered remarks on "Hints to Teachers," in which he rapidly sketched the vibratory nature of mere emotion; the error of those who talk of cross bearing; the evil of sanctified ignorance and of teachers who did not find enough in the lesson to occupy their time, but read papers and whittled tooth-picks to fill up the hour; who allowed frivolous questions; who depended on cyclopedias instead of their own jottings and who talked in monotonous tones. He urged the power of gentleness with rough natures and the need of eliciting questions from the children.

Rev. C. Stone of this city read a paper on the need of better Sunday school books. A very few really useful books have been found of late in our libraries. Ten works of fiction are sought where one of solid worth. How shall we lift the standard? Plainly by elevating the taste of our pupils and teaching them that to have a good time was not the object of the school. It is rather to teach pure morality, inculcate serious thought and religious feeling.

Messrs. Rogers, Peckham and Fay spoke on the same theme and wished to know how this taste might be developed, which would demand better mental diet.

Prof. Sherwin tendered the salutations of workers in New York and New Jersey and then answered questions. Incompetent teachers and attendance at the preaching service were considered, also the evidence of conversion among children and kindred topics.

EVENING SESSION—PRAISE MEETING.

The floor of the church was comfortably filled. Prof. Sherwin remarked on the text "Whosoever offereth praise glorifieth Me"—not the singer, the book or choir, but God. Brief utterances were interpolated by delegates between the hymns, which were mostly new, from the "Songs of Grace and Glory." The audience took hold of the singing with zest and the evening hour was a most enjoyable and profitable one.

The Nominating Committee added to their report the names of Rev. Messrs. Danforth, Grant and Peckham as Vice Presidents. W. G. Duren Assistant Secretary, Rev. L. [illegible], Grant and Dea. J. C. White on the Committee on Resolutions.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

A prayer meeting at 8 o'clock this morning will be led by Mr. Alden Baker and another at 9 A. M. by Rev. James Crosby. A discussion will be opened by Rev. G. R. Palmer on "Means for advancing Spirituality in the Sabbath School," to be followed by another on "Graded vs. Uniform Lessons" by Rev. W. Woodbury and Mr. E. S. Hoyt, and "Teachers' Meetings" by Prof. Sherwin.

MAJOR-GENERAL G. L. HARTSUFF. Intelligence is received of the death at New York on Saturday of Gen. Geo. L. Hartsuff. The deceased was born in Tyre, N. Y., May 28, 1830. He graduated at West Point in 1852, as second lieutenant of artillery, and was rapidly promoted in the regular service. In April, 1862, he was made a Brigadier General of Volunteers, and was appointed Major General a few months later. While in the regular service he served with distinction in Texas and in the Florida war. During the late war he served with Rosecrans in the army of Western Virginia. In May, 1862 he assumed command of a brigade in the field. This brigade was in the field at Cedar Mountain, and was in the advance in the march to the Rapidan, and at Rappahannock Knoll, where for several days it maintained its position, unsupported and in the face of heavy odds. At Stone Mountain and Antietam his command was distinguished for brave service, and he for intrepid valor. In the latter battle he was severely wounded, and although he was given a command in Tennessee, he was able to assume active service in the field. After the surrender of Petersburg Gen. Hartsuff had command of the Department of the Nottoway, and won the universal esteem of the people. In 1871 he was promoted to be a full Major General. He was a brave general and an honorable and kindly man. His death was hastened by wounds received in service.

A FORMER CASE OF BRONCHITIS CURED. Bridgewater, N. S., March 2d, 1869.—Mr. James Fellows.—Dear Sir: While in Windsor on a visit in December last, I fell in with an old friend,—Capt. H. Coffill—and finding him looking so hearty and robust, was led to inquire what had produced the great change, for when I last saw him, two years previous, he was a mere skeleton. He informed me that your very valuable Syrup of Hypophosphites had effected a perfect cure. He persuaded me to try the Syrup for Bronchitis, from which I had suffered much during several years. I purchased one dozen of this syrup, and have used only three bottles, and my health is now better than it has been for years. Not requiring the balance of the dozen, I sold the different parties, and now there is a general demand for it from all parts. Respectfully yours, W. J. NELSON.

Capt. H. Coffill was cured of Consumption in 1869 by Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites; his letter was published some time ago.

TESTIMONIAL

MATTHIER KELLER,

COMPOSER OF THE

"AMERICAN HYMN," ETC.

BOSTON, Nov. 1, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

Dear Sir—Although an entire stranger to you I feel that I do not take too much liberty in expressing my strong appreciation of the merits of VEGETINE.

I have for some time suffered severely from a complication of diseases such as dyspepsia, rheumatism and other attendant evils, and have tried numberless so-called remedies without effecting any relief.

I had seen your medicine largely advertised in the newspapers but had never had sufficient faith in it to try it. Seeing an advertisement in [illegible] however, I concluded that he would not advertise a humbug, and therefore decided to give it a fair trial.

After having taken only two bottles I became strongly convinced that it was accomplishing wonderful results and that the only mistake I had made was in not sooner giving it a trial.

I shall continue its use, feeling that it is my remedy for restoration to health.

I feel it a pleasure as well as a duty, to give the public my [illegible] approval of your excellent VEGETINE.

MATTHIER KELLER,

MR. STEVENS.

Dear Sir—I am seventy one years of age, have suffered many years with Kidney Complaint, weakness in my back and stomach. I was induced by friends to try your VEGETINE and I think it the best medicine for weakness of the kidneys I ever used. I have tried many remedies for this complaint, and never found so much relief as from the VEGETINE. It strengthens and invigorates the whole system. Many of my acquaintances have taken it, and I believe it to be good for all the complaints for which it is recommended.

Yours truly,

JOSIAH H. SHERMAN.

HOW THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE WAS OUTWITTED.

(Concluded.)

Where was Ralph Willett's gallantry that he did not offer his services as escort on this plain hint? But he didn't, only resolved that he would go by himself at the earliest opportunity. There was nothing out of character even for a married man to take an interest in his former pupil, and watch her success as teacher.

He went accordingly, the very next Saturday. How charmingly dignified the little school ma'am was, and how her sunny presence lit up the dingy old school house. The scho[illegible] was a notoriously hard one, but she was beginning finely, as Ralph assured her, and [illegible] this [illegible] coming again, by and by to note her progress.

"I don't think you're enjoying your school as well as you did in the fall. Your letters are not so cheery."

"Why don't I enjoy myself so well?" Ralph asked himself. "All is barren mous in [illegible]"

Then he laid the blame upon "the cold weather and the bad roads which hindered his coming weeks, but so believe all his cogitations would come round at last to Effie Broomfield, and he would fall to wondering how she was getting on, if she had to burn green wood in that rusty three legged stove, if she was content boarding around, etc. And in school hours, when some blundering pupil was mixing moods and tenses in a hopeless tangle, trying to conjugate amo, or standing at the blackboard, helpless in the mazes of a geometrical problem, it was certainly curious how his thoughts always reverted to Effie, the tender way in which Latin verbs in all their moods came readily from her lips, and the clear headed and neat handed way in which she would elucidate a problem. Effie Broomfield! It was not the most harmonious name in the world, but he found himself often repeating it mentally, over and over, as if it were a strain of music.

Near the close of the term he went again to visit the school. Well might he feel pride in his pupil as he noticed the results of her winter's work. Rude gawky boys were transformed into young gentlemen, and romping boyish girls into young ladies—all thro' her gentle influence. Their progress in learning had been both rapid and thorough, and Ralph to his delight, was not at all sparing of his encomiums. The little school ma'am took them as demurely as though they were a matter of course, seeming to feel in no wise flattered, and Ralph somehow felt himself her inferior.

"She's just the one for a teacher," he said to himself, as he pursued his solitary way homeward. "What a splendid wife she would make for some man who intended to make this his life-work!"

He did not go home at the winter vacation, it being only for a week.

"It's almost too bad, Mrs Watkins said to him consolingly. "I dare say it looks a long time ahead before you will see your wife."

"It does, really," replied Ralph, with a blush that set Mrs. Watkins into silent admiration of his modesty.

Mrs Elliot informed the curious ones that Mr Willett sent out a letter to his wife, every day through vacation, and was obliging enough to show to several the white monogram envelopes, wherein "Mrs. Ralph Willett" in writing almost as handsome as engraving, stood, to their minds, as an evidence of high material affection.

The spring term opened with a great increase of scholars, and Ralph needed an assistant. Effie Broomfield was among the pupils—but he was so impressed with her superiority as a teacher that he offered her the post of assistant. She finally consented, with reluctance, to teach half the day, giving the other half to her studies. Kate Martin was engaged to do the same the other half of the day, and the school went bravely on.

It was a lovely spring. The snow went off in a sweeping, good temper, no angry winds, nor dismal rains, the brooks burst into music as soon as ever they broke their icy chains, and the birds sang as sweetly as ever before, at least this was the way it all seemed to Ralph Willett. Every night at the close of school, he was [illegible] hold a little conference at the desk with Miss Broomfield, somehow there was always something to inquire about or to suggest, and then they often walked down the street together as far as Mrs. Watkin's gate.

"I do think, Effie," said Rose Peters, enviously, one day, "that you are getting to be a real flirt. Mr Willett is altogether too attentive to you for a married man"

Effie's eyes flashed indignantly.

"You have no occasion to make such a remark. Mr Willett says nothing to me but what is proper and business like, and anybody might hear."

"Oh, now, don't fly into a passion about it," laughed Rose, twirling the multitudinous rings on her fingers, "I only meant to joke you a little, th' truth to tell, if he wasn't a married man I should think he was dead in love with you his eyes follow you every where—and when you speak he seems to devour every word you say."

"Hush!" said Effie, authoritatively, though not a soul was in hearing, "I will not listen to such nonsense."

"Oh! you innocent little darling!" laughed Rose. I only wish I had your chance in Mr. Willett's eyes. I'd make that wife of his jealous."

"It's pity that the devoted attention of all the unmarried men in town will not suffice you, but you must sigh after the married."

"Children are always crying for the moon, you know. Perhaps, if Mr. Willett wasn't a married man he'd be no better than the rest, but, as it is, there's not a young man in town worth mentioning the same day."

All pleasant things in this world must come to an end sooner or later, and this pleasant spring term was no exception to the rule. It closed in May with a grand exhibition, but the night proved as exhibition nights are prone to, dark and rainy. Dame Nature, after being on good smiling behavior all the term, might be pardoned for making this closing night a time for her copious tears.

Effie Broomfield wended her way to the exhibition under her father's escort, with the triple aid of his arm, lantern and umbrella.

"You make such a splendid beau, father; you don't seem at all afraid of wetting your own boots, and leaving me the best walking."

"Thanks for the compliment, but I dare say you'll be leaving me in the lurch, and allowing one of these same glossy-booted young men to walk home with you. It's the way of the ungrateful world, you know."

"But not my way," said Effie stoutly, "I'm engaged to you for to-night, so don't forget to wait for me, your lantern, umbrella and general good care altogether irresistible."

The hall was crowded to overflowing, in spite of the rain, and Effie, from her seat away in front, did not notice that her father was called out before the exhibition was half over. At its close, she donned her wraps, and while she spoke the good-by to one and another of her schoolmates, waited and watched for her father.

He did not come, though the hall was fast emptying. Two or three offers of company home she declined, thinking he must be there, when up came Fred Peters, a crony of her brother Jack.

"Oh! Miss Effie! I've been looking for you; your father was called out to serve on a jury, but he left his lantern and umbrella with Jack and told him to see to you. But Jack he'd been and offered his company home to Minnie Warner before that, so he asked me to tell you to wait till he comes back."

Effie groaned in spirit, for Minnie Warner's home was away at the other end of the long street. Was there ever anything so inconsiderate as a younger brother of 16? She went to the window and interviewed the weather, if perhaps she might make the trip alone and unprotected, but it was raining in torrents, and fearfully dark. There was no alternative but to wait for Jack to play the gallant and done with it. Yet the crowd was gone, and the lamps were being put out; only one remained, when Mr. W[illett] suddenly came up the stairs and reentered the room.

"You here still! Miss Broomfield," he exclaimed, "I supposed everybody was gone. I came back for a book I forgot," and he picked it up from a table near.

A few words sufficed to explain Effie's awkward dilemma. "Never mind," he said, "if you will accept my company home, I shall be happy to relieve you from the unpleasant situation." She accepted the offer in the same spirit in which it was made, and soon found herself on the way home with a lantern as bright, an umbrella as large, and an arm as reliable as her father's.

As for Ralph Willett, it was the first time since his coming to Monroe that he had waited upon a lady, but the occupation was far from uncongenial. Indeed, the very lively tattoo which his heart was beating, as for the first time Effie Broomfield's hand rested on his coatsleeve, convinced him fully of what he might have known long before, if he would have acknowledged it to himself, that he was hopelessly in love with her. And all the while she, innocent little thing! was chatting as freely and unsuspiciously as if he was her grandfather. How guilty he felt when he remembered that she and all the rest of the Monroe-ites looked on him as a married man and how afraid he was she would hear his heart beating so tumultuously!

Commonplace remarks are the safest under such circumstances, so Ralph spoke of the rain, the mud, the evening's exercises, and finally the prospect for the summer term.—"I do not expect to need an assistant," he said, "but I hope you will attend the school," trying hard not to appear unduly anxious on this subject.

"I should like to," said Effie, "but I must be taking care of myself now, and cannot do just what I would prefer."

"You will try teaching again?"

"Yes sir but not here. I have not mentioned the matter to any one as yet, lest something should happen to defeat my plans, but now the time is so near I may tell you that I expect to go to Virginia to teach. A friend there has kindly procured me a situation, and I must start next week."

To Virginia! Next week! Ralph forgot all his caution and married man pretenses, forgot everything in the dread of losing her, and clasping her hand, burst eagerly forth

"Don't go! Effie! dearest Effie! I love you as my own life. Do not leave me."

Was that quiet Effie Broomfield? that indignant, scornful maiden, who tore herself away from him, under the shelter of his umbrella, and with flashing eyes exclaimed

"Leave me this instant, Mr Willett, and never let me see your face again! Oh what have I ever done that you should insult me?" and her strength failing, she leaned against the fence and gave way to a torrent of tears.

"Miss Broomfield," said Ralph, in his dilemma, "will you think me more or less of a villain if I tell you I have never been married?"

"You have spoken of your wife," said Effie.

"Of Mrs. Willett, I acknowledge, but she is my mother and not my wife. I have never been married, and shall never be unless you consent to be my wife, and he offered her his arm again. "I beg pardon for alarming you so—but I spoke on the impulse of the moment."

What was Effie to do? It still rained hard—she was almost home—so she took his arm again, and walked on, listening to his hurried explanation.

"It was wicked in me to deceive you all so I grant, but I needed the situation, and knew they would not trust me as a single man. Do you blame me very much?"

They were at the door now. "I hardly know," she said, for her own heart was pleading his case.

"May I come and see you in the morning, then, you and your father?" and with her half-whisper "Yes," he pressed her hand warmly with a good-night" and departed; meeting the delinquent Jack just at the gate.

"Found a beau, didn't you, sis?" said Jack as he came leisurely in. "I knew you would, you always do, so I didn't hurry.

Effie escaped to her room and lay half the rest of the night pondering on this state of things. Was she really herself or somebody else? She had read about in a book? It was about as puzzling a case as that of the old woman with shortened skirts in "Mother Goose"

Morning brought Mr Willett to electrify her parents with his revelations. He made his case so clear that there was no doubt of honesty, but at his request they forbore, to say anything abroad, until two days later, when in response to a telegram, down to Monroe came his mother, Bob Ayres, and the old gray haired minister who had known him from a baby upward. They brought proof enough of the truth of Ralph's assertions, Bob Ayres generously taking upon himself all the blame of Ralph's deception, and giving an account in his graphic way of how it came about, so Effie no longer hesitated to give her hand where, it was useless to deny, her heart had already preceded it.

Of course Monroe was all ablaze. But everybody sympathized with Mr. Willett that all seemed willing to extenuate the case. The general sentiment of the community was the same expressed by Mrs. Watkins to Ralph's mother, and curiously enough, the same that Bob Ayres gave utterance to at the outset.

"Now, Mrs Willett, your son had come here callin' himself a single man, when he was married, I couldn't overlook it in him as long as I live, but com'n' here and callin' himself married, when he was single jest to keep the girls from runnin' after him, that's altogether a different thing."

Ralph went to the trustees, acknowledged his fault, and tendered his resignation, which they utterly refused to accept.

"No, indeed," said the president of the board, "rather consider yourself bound to us for life," and he shook him warmly by the hand. "The crime of being unmarried is easily atoned for," and the worthy man put on such a knowing look, that Ralph colored up like a veritable school girl.

So Effie did not go to Virginia, but her travelling suit was all ready for her bridal trip, the next week, and when Ralph Willett came back to Monroe to commence his summer term, it was indeed and in truth, as a married man.

OFFICE OF EMERY COOK,
REAL ESTATE AND MORTGAGE BROKER,
No. 501 NORTH MAIN STREET,
PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 1, 1873.

Dr. F. W. Kinsman, Augusta, Maine:

Two years ago last September I took a severe cold, with sore throat for some days; the cold finally settled with a cough, dry and very painful. I used various kinds of syrup recommended by friends who noticed my condition, but with no relief. My physician prescribed Whiskey, and then Cod Liver Oil. I took three quarts of the oil, and not being relieved I commenced taking Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, of which I took several bottles, Miller's Expectorant four bottles, and some four or five other remedies, continually growing weaker, losing my appetite, and about giving up all hopes of any relief. In fact, I was marked by my family, and about every person that I met, as sure to die.

But lo! a change took place. One day last winter a circular was thrown in my office, which advertised Adamson's Botanic Balsam, (thank God). I read that circular very carefully; put on my coat and went for it. I at last found it and began taking it regularly, and as per directions. Before I had used half a bottle I noticed a change. I then got hauled six bottles; and minding business, went through four of them, continually growing better, resting all night, cough entirely gone, and to-day I can do as much business in one hour as I could in one day eight months ago. I am also gaining in flesh, and generally speaking, feel good all over. This all comes by use of Adamson's Balsam.

I invariably recommend it to everybody similarly afflicted, and can this day give you the names and residence of at least fifty persons who have been cured of coughs and colds by its use. I also urged a friend of mine who is in business near me, to add this article to his stock; he did so and sold twenty bottles in less than a fortnight, and I have not heard of any one yet dissatisfied.

I would as soon think of having property uninsured against loss by fire as to be found without a good supply of Adamson's Balsam in my closet.

With assurance of my highest regard, I am gratefully yours, &c.

EMERY COOK.

BANGOR, March 23, 1872.

FRANK W. KINSMAN, Esq.

Dear Sir:—We are happy to be able to inform you that out of over 2400 bottles of your Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, which we have sold over our counter during the last past three months we have not heard of one solitary case of its failing against its unrivaled good results; but all who have had occasion to speak of it at all, have spoken of its merits in the highest terms of praise too.

Respectfully yours,
WARREN L. ALDEN & CO.

Read What the Doctors Say

We have known Dr. F. W. Kinsman, of Augusta, Me., for the past twenty years, as a successful druggist; have examined the formula of his admission's Botanic Cough Balsam. We regard it as a very useful remedy. Many of our friends have used it, and all pronounce it the best remedy they ever used for coughs, colds, asthma and diseases of the lungs.

I. H. STEARNS,
Surgeon S. M. Asylum.

There is no disease with which our country is afflicted, which sweeps off annually so many victims as that fell destroyer of the human race,

CONSUMPTION.

It is estimated that nearly 175,000 die annually with this terrible disease. Consumption, in its confirmed and incipient stages, Coughs, Asthma, and affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, Croup, &c., form by far the most fatal class of disease known in our land.

Yet even these may be effectually cured by remedies of the simple, yet wonderful remedy that nature has furnished.

We have carefully combined the medical properties of those natural healing extracts of

BARKS, ROOTS, and HERBS

BOSTON, August 27th, 1873.

F. W. Kinsman, Esq.—Dear Sir:—With pleasure we order five gross Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam—the sale has commenced very surely, showing conclusively that the merit has won the day and that your preparation is taking the lead over the many bottles of trash that now flood the market.

SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, Wholesale Druggists.

From G. C. Goodwin & Co., New England Patent Medicine Warehouse, 38 Hanover St., Boston May 4th, 1872

Mr. F. W. Kinsman,—Dear Sir:—We have had in all about 25 gross Adamson's Balsam, and have retailed nearly a dozen of it over our retail counter. Parties have been in and bought it the second time, and all pronounce it one of the best medicines in the market for coughs and colds. Some of our men have used it and say it is the best remedy they have tried.

Dr. Huntington says:—I have known Dr. Kinsman's Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam for some time, and I regard it far before any medicine of the kind. I have used it in my practice and in my own family with complete success.

No. 19 State St., Boston, Aug. 9, 1873.

Dr. F. W. Kinsman,—Dear Sir:—It gives me great pleasure to say that Adamson's Botanic cough Balsam cured me of a severe cold to which I have been subject, especially during the winter months, and I have so many instances fortunately used it to my friends, and all have been benefitted by its use. We think it has no equal as a cough mixture.
